the ablest debater of his party. They stumped the State, and nearly so making speeches usually on alternate days, and each addressing large audiences at great length, sometimes four hours together. Mr. Lincoln, in these elaborate speeches, evinced a thorough mastery of the principles of politics, and presented arguments in favor of the protective policy with a power and conclusiveness rarely equalled, and at the same time in a manner so lucid and familiar and so well interspersed with happy anecdotes and apposite quotations, as to establish a reputation which he has never since failed to maintain as the leader in the Whig and Republican ranks in the great West.

In 1846 he was elected to Congress, and served out his term, and would have been re-elected had he not declined to be a candidate. He steadily and earnestly opposed the annexation of Texas, and labored with all his powers in behalf of the Proviso. In the National Convention of 1848, of which he was a member, he advocated the nomination of General

Taylor, and sustained the nomination by an active canvass in Illinois and Indiana.

From 1849 to 1854 Mr. Lincoln was engaged assiduously in the practice of his profession, and being deeply interested in politics, when the scheming selfishness of an unscrupulous aspirant to the Presidency brought about the repeal of the Missouri
